Q10: Please indicate what you see as the greatest strengths of a UKNOF meeting.

As a first time attendee I found that there was a definite community vibe going on, a feeling that this wasn't just some boring old conference. It was great to hear that even when giving formally scheduled presentations there was room for a bit of banter and humour. It was a great opportunity to see and talk to a number of former colleagues, meet some new people, and learn some new things.

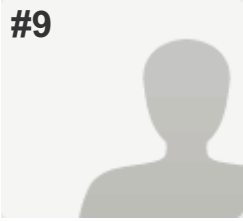

Q11: Please indicate what you see as the major weaknesses or areas for improvement for a UKNOF meeting.

The only thing I can think of is that it's a little daunting for a newbie. I think I've posted to the mailing list once, so while I know many names and even a few faces, not so many will know me. The community feel of it is great, I just didn't necessarily feel as though I was a part of it. (yet.)

Q12: Do you have any other comments? (This section may include feedback such as how UKNOF meetings may be improved, catering, facilities, etc).

It did feel as though there could be more time set aside for people to chat and meet each other a bit, maybe if the format changed to span two days this would allow for longer periods of networking.

Q10: Please indicate what you see as the greatest strengths of a UKNOF meeting.

Open, with no attachment to specific organisations such as LINX so brings together network engineering folks from various groups that get together less often.

Anyone can submit a talk, and it's judged on technical merit.

Q11: Please indicate what you see as the major weaknesses or areas for improvement for a UKNOF meeting.

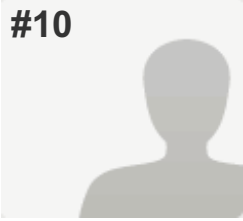

It risks adding to meeting fatigue - many folk have busy calendars. If there's a need to be multi-day, then increase value of and participation in UKNOF meetings by co-locating or encouraging other industry events around the same time.

Sponsors can use their time wisely or poorly. We had demonstrations of both at UKNOF31. Fewer sponsor talks seems a good target to aim for.

Q9: Would you be interested in paid for professional training adjacent to UKNOF meetings? No

Q10: Please indicate what you see as the greatest strengths of a UKNOF meeting.

Of more direct relevance to UK network operators than RIPE, closer than NANOG :)
A good balance between commercial interests and free-ness - this is not easy and y'all are to be applauded for treading the balance.

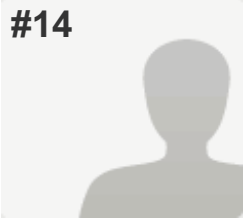

Q11: Please indicate what you see as the major weaknesses or areas for improvement for a UKNOF meeting.

Very focused (by the charter) on ISP networks. A lot of network engineers I know don't operate ISP networks; nonetheless we have some areas of shared interest.

Q12: Do you have any other comments? (This section may include feedback such as how UKNOF meetings may be improved, catering, facilities, etc).

I wouldn't attend the training, but I think it's a great idea.
Also, how about free professional training? I think some people would be willing to run tutorials a la NANOG.
